

Governance 101 for Directors in Cricket – How to Access

This online course allows those leading and overseeing cricket to develop their skills from the comfort of their own home, at a time that suits them.

It can be completed within two to six hours depending on how new this information is to you and how in-depth you choose to focus and apply the learning.

- For some, it's simply an overview and refresher around good governance.
- For others, it may present new knowledge and can help you systematically consider how well you and your Board are fulfilling various aspects of your governance role and requirements.

There are Partnership Agreement targets for all NZC, Major Association and District Association Board members to complete this course. With new board members encouraged to do so within six months of their appointment.

Governance 101 for Directors in Cricket

Online

Description

In this programme you'll learn the fundamentals of governance, which can be applied to any organisation and are particularly relevant to not-for-profits. This programme is based on the sport and recreation governance framework and uses the resources available on the Sport New Zealand website. There's more than one right way to govern, so these modules focus on the key principles that are applicable no matter which context or governance model you are working within.

Course includes

- Module 1: The role of the director.
- Module 2: The board's strategic role.
- Module 3: Recruiting and inducting for the board.
- Module 4: How to prepare for and participate in a board meeting.
- Module 5: Board accountability, ethics and integrity
- Module 6: Get resources, tools and advice to help you put better governance into practice.
- Module 7: Short learning check to confirm you've understood critical learnings from the programme.
